Contractor's Tax

Montana Law provides for a 1% tax on public contractors, on the value of all public works contracts over $5,000. Section 15-50-101(3)(a) MCA defines a Public Contractor as any person who enters into a construction contract with a public entity when the contract cost, value, or price exceeds the sum of $5,000. This includes work done by subcontractors.

This tax does not apply to the purchase of materials alone. An example might be if a county purchases 10,000 yards of gravel from a supplier for $10/yard, for a total cost of $100,000. No tax is due because the transaction is a purchase of materials. On the other hand, if a county enters into a contract with a contractor to haul and apply 10,000 yards of gravel at $20.00/yard for a total contract price of $200,000, the tax applies because it falls under the definition in 15-50-101 MCA of performing public construction work.

The tax imposed is equal to 1% of the gross receipts which is defined in 15-50-101(2) MCA to include the total value of all considerations, including materials, labor, interest and all other expenses, whatsoever, but does not include any discounts or sales refunds that the contractor may receive from suppliers. It is the responsibility of the contractor to pay the tax due to the Department of Revenue, however, pursuant to 15-50-206(2) MCA, it is also the responsibility of the public agency for whom the contractor is performing work, to withhold the tax due and to remit the amount withheld to the Department of Revenue at the same time as a payment to a contractor is made. The withholding form is available at: <http://mt.gov/revenue/formsandresources/forms/PC2.pdf>

The Department of the Interior – Bureau of Land Management has distributed Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) for Federal Fiscal Year 2007 to counties. On the following page (page 3) is a spreadsheet comparing the 2007 and 2006 payments and acres for each Montana County. Overall Montana saw a decline of over $83,000.

The state total payment decreased slightly (-$83,179) while the acres increased slightly (20,267). However there were some significant changes for several counties. Most of these changes are due to changing acreage.

The PILT formula provides for two methods for calculating of the payment, with each county receiving the higher of the two. The calculated payment amount is higher than the amount appropriated by Congress therefore each county's actual payment is a percentage of the authorized amount. The amount appropriated by Congress was the same this year as last. The net effect is that when one county's calculated amount increases because of increased acreage, all other county's payments are decreased. It is simply a matter of the pie being of a fixed size and the size of each county's slice changing annually. The total appropriation for both 2006 and 2007 was $232,133,759 which is about 65% of the authorized amount. Approximately $400,000 of the Congressional appropriation is retained by the department to administer the program. Full funding for PILT continues to be one of NACo's highest priorities.

You will note that there are significant differences on a per/acre basis. This is due to a population cap being part of the formula. Note that Glacier County received $1.43/acre while Petroleum County only received $0.14 per/acre. MACo continues to work with the Western Interstate Region and the NACo Public Lands Steering Committee to urge Congressional changes in the formula to make the per/acre distribution more equitable.

The BLM news release for this year is at: http://www.doi.gov/news/07_News_Releases/070615.html

Additional information is available at: <http://www.doi.gov/pilt/>

Note to new County Treasurers: PILT payments were distributed in September until a few years ago. When the payments began being distributed in June, some counties chose to recognize the revenue when received while others carried it as deferred revenue into the next fiscal year. You may want to review when the payment was booked last year in your county accounting system and do the same so you do not end up showing double revenue in one year.

Sun Protection: It's Not Just for Summer

Provided by Federal Occupation Health, Department of Health and Human Services, <http://www.foh.dhhs.gov/>

It's Summer! But before you grab your boogie-board and run to the beach, consider this. Skin cancer is the most common kind of cancer in the United States; accounting for approximately 50% of all cancers.

What's the cause for this skin cancer epidemic?

Skin cancer is related to lifetime exposure to ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun as well as artificial sources (sunlamps, tanning booths). Anyone can develop skin cancer, but some people are at higher risk and should take special care to avoid UV exposure. If you have a family history of skin cancer, your risk for it increases. Also, at risk are those people who have fair skin that freckles easily; those with red or blond hair; and those with blue or light-colored eyes. Finally, you're at risk if you've had a history of sunburns early in life.

What You Can Do

The good news is that prevention is as easy as using sun protection and limiting unprotected sun exposure. How much sun is too much? Not much. Unprotected skin can be harmed by UV rays in as little as 15 minutes. Start by incorporating these sun protection habits into your daily life:

- Avoid peak sun - seek shade and avoid the sun during midday hours
- Cover up - wear a hat, long-sleeved shirts, and pants
- Use sunscreen everyday – SPF 15 or higher (look for both UVA and UVB protection) The good news is that prevention is as easy as using sun protection and limiting unprotected sun exposure. How much sun is too much? Not much. Unprotected skin can be harmed by UV rays in as little as 15 minutes. Start by incorporating these sun protection habits into your daily life:

So, you've had a few sunburns?

Start by avoiding further damage by following the sun protection tips above and monitor your skin regularly for signs of changes or new growths. Most importantly, see your doctor for regular skin exams. The cure rate for skin cancer could be 100 percent if concerns were brought to a doctor's attention early.

And before you plan any outdoor activities, visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Global Solar UV Index www.epa.gov/sunwise/uvindex.html, where you can check your local UV index forecasts by zip code.

Visit the Cancer Institute at the National Institutes of Health for more information about skin cancer <http://www.cancer.gov/>.

As the hot summer sun continues to shine, we remind everyone to beware of heat-related illnesses too, and to take the simple precautions necessary to preventing them.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, excessive heat exposure caused 8,015 deaths in the United States between 1979 and 1999. The types of heat illnesses range from minor to severe, from the painful heat cramps to the very fatal heat stroke, but all are fairly easy to prevent.

Those most at risk of heat related illnesses are people over 65, the very young, the obese, and those with blood or sweat-related illnesses or medications. This includes people with low blood pressure, diabetes, heart disease, dehydration, or malnutrition. The risk is especially high when air conditioning is unavailable for long periods of time, and during heat waves.

Heat illness prevention centers on remaining out of extreme temperatures whenever possible and remaining fully hydrated. Here are a few tips for staying cool:

When outdoors, make sure to drink plenty of fluids, especially water. Try to avoid drinks with large amounts of caffeine, alcohol, or sugar, as these can inhibit your body's cooling process. Start drinking before you get thirsty. When temperatures get extremely high, make sure to go someplace cool, out of the heat. Even a few hours of air conditioning per day can prevent heat stroke. If you exercise outside, try to do it in the early morning or late evening, when temperatures are cooler. Wear lightweight, loose, light-colored clothing, including wide-brimmed hats.

Linda Taft
Finance Officer/Office Manager

Linda recently moved to Helena from Great Falls and joined the staff in March 2007. She has over 15 years' experience in public accounting, having worked as a receptionist, office manager, payroll clerk, plan administrator, staff accountant and auditor.

Linda's most significant past career experience was at Hamilton Misfeldt Company from 2000-2005 (upon college graduation). She was assigned duties which enabled her to learn and grow. The Partners of Hamilton Misfeldt were very encouraging and allowed Linda time off when needed to attend her college courses. Without their flexibility a college degree would not have been attainable, because she had two children to support. When there was a tragic accident in her family, co-workers voluntarily (without her knowledge) donated sick leave.

Linda holds bachelors' degrees in fine arts, business administration, and accounting, and she is completing requirements for her CPA designation. Linda enjoys hiking, reading, and pursuing her interest in the fine arts.

Voluntary Employee Beneficiary Association (VEBA) 2007

By Melanie Denning, VEBA Officer

Montana has defined in statute a specific set of benefits which may be paid from a VEBA trust set up for eligible Montana public employees. That purpose is to pay for qualified health care expenditures as defined by the IRS. The goal is to assist eligible public employees in accumulating assets for the purpose of paying for health care benefits.

The 2007 Legislature passed SB 168, which allows the inclusion and conversion of accrued vacation leave, in addition to the conversion of sick leave payouts to a VEBA account. Though the bill states it is effective July 1, 2007, the VEBA administration is required to apply with the IRS for the tax-free exemption to include vacation leave. We hope to have this approval in time for December 2007 retirees if the IRS provides the approval in time to implement the changes in the program.

When the approval is granted, the following must take place to amend the group benefit :

- 1) A new election must be held where employees of the group agree to the vacation leave contribution to the VEBA Account. The decision to use vacation leave as a contribution will be made prior to a group vote. This will ensure agreement as to the use of this new funding source before a vote for uniform application to each member at separation for service.
- 2) Since the new language in SB 168 provides for "all or part of" sick leave to be contributed - the amount of the leave contributed must be defined and voted on, unless the IRS approves more latitude in defining the range of sick leave that each individual may select . For example - unless the VEBA receives approval for more flexibility, the ballot has to contain the language "contribute 50% of sick leave" etc.

- 3) Elections can only be held annually - either on or after the previous election date. Therefore, if your "group" held an election in August authorizing retirees to contribute sick leave to VEBA, you would need to hold a new election in August with the new group benefit definitions, such as vacation leave and the portion of sick leave to be contributed.

Retirees that have already separated are grand-fathered and their benefit will not change.

Dawning of a New Day: Newly-Elected Ravalli County Commissioners Take Seats

By Anthony Quirini, Ravalli Republic

Three new Ravalli County commissioners took office June 13, 2007, signaling a new era in the county's local government.

The recently expanded five-member board is now equally split with two Democrats, two Republicans and one Independent. And, two women will sit on the board for the first time in county history.

Bright and early on June 13, in front of more than 50 citizens, the three new county officials received their titles as county commissioners. Independent Carlotta Grandstaff and Democrats Jim Rokosch and Kathleen Driscoll took oaths and settled into their new positions after soundly defeating their Republican opponents last week.

"It is truly your government," Rokosch said. "I am going to hope and pray that you continue to engage yourself in your government. As one elected official, every citizen in this county is a constituent. This is the epitome of public service.

"What do you want us to do?" Grandstaff said as she settled into her new chair and position in county government.

And while the presumption during the elections was that the commissioners would draw straws to determine term lengths, county officials decided to leave it up to the court to decide. Grandstaff, Driscoll, and Rokosch are gearing up for four-year terms until a judge tells them otherwise.

"After consulting with the commissioners elect and reviewing the law on this matter, there is no need to determine term lengths at this time due to the fact that the civil case is still pending," Clerk and Recorder Regina Plettenberg said.

In her statement before commissioners were sworn in, Plettenberg noted if another ruling does not come down 30 days prior to the opening of candidacy filing for the 2008 primary election, a drawing of straws will commence.

Essentially, two of the new commissioners will have four-year terms, and one will have a two-year term.

Back in November voters chose to increase the size of the board and shorten term lengths, and a provision of the recommendations made by a group elected to recommend changes in local government included ousting all sitting commissioners. The issue was challenged in court and yet to be decided.

A Missoula judge halted the election for sitting commissioners Alan Thompson and Greg Chilcott, both Republicans, but hasn't said when their terms might end. Chilcott's term will be over in 2008 anyway, but Thompson was elected to a term ending in 2010.

In that same election, voters elected Howard Lyons, who took office in January but had to run again to retain his seat after a District Court judge ruled in the matter. He was defeated by Independent Carlotta Grandstaff in the recent election.

Ravalli County has the only five-member commission form of government in the state.

WIR Conference: Fairbanks, Alaska

By Kathy Bessette, Hill County Commissioner

Rural Obesity Initiative

Casey Dillon, Program Assistant at NACo's Center for Sustainable Communities, led the discussion on youth obesity and related illnesses at the 7 a.m. breakfast meeting. Diabetes has become a major problem, not only in urban areas but also in small towns and rural America. Urban areas are able to access resources and services, but rural communities are unable to provide many of these services. The goal of this initiative is to attract financial and technical resources to assist rural county leaders to create healthier communities.

Commissioner Peggy Beltrone is active on this committee so contact her for more information.

Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee

Chairman Keith Langenhahn welcomed all committee members to Fairbanks. He reported on the Rural Action Caucus fly-in, which focused on the Farm Bill. He said 12 commissioners flew into Washington, D.C., and over 80 visits were made to individual members of Congress, asking for support for the Farm Bill. Commissioners also requested support for new dollars for rural development, not taking away from existing programs.

Commissioner Peggy Beltrone updated the committee on the progress that the 25 X 25 project has made and encouraged all counties to pass the resolution supporting the goal: "by 2025, America's agricultural, forestry, and working lands will provide 25% of the total energy consumed in the United States from renewable sources, while continuing to produce safe, abundant, and affordable food, feed, and fiber." At the present time 25 X 25 has been endorsed by 425 organizations, consisting of non-profits, local governments, 24 governors, over 100 members of Congress, agriculture groups, environmental groups, and universities. Tax credits will be available relating to geothermal energy development, stated Beltrone.

Bob Kidd, a representative for the Council for Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching, talked about CARET, which is a national grassroots organization created in 1982 by the Division of Agriculture. The mission of the group is to enhance national support and understanding of the land-grant university system's food and agriculture research, extension, and teaching programs in order to achieve a better standard of living for all people. Kidd requested support from the Ag Committee for the CARET program. This will be discussed at the Annual conference in Richmond, Virginia.

Julie Ufner, NACo Waters Advocacy Coalition, spoke to the group about the importance of opposing H.R. 2421. This bill proposes to change language in the Clean Water Act from "navigable" to "waters of the US." This change would force county governments to apply for a CWA permit for any project that would impact or indirectly affect "waters of the US," which due to its broad definition, includes county roads and manmade ditches, to mention a few. The CWA permitting process is overseen by the Army Corps of Engineers and they are already behind in processing permits. It is estimated that there are more than 15,000 permits awaiting approval so one can only imagine the time frame required.

Langenhahn urged all committee members to support the Secure Rural Schools bill and make an effort to urge all Congressional delegates for their state to support this legislation.

I attended several workshops, including one regarding treating offenders with mental illness when those individuals have ended up in county jails. An estimate of 16% of county jail population is there because of their mental illness rather than the result of criminal intent. This is a community problem and many more community-based services are needed to assist law enforcement with this issue.

Other workshops I attended included dealing with the changes Alaska's northern communities are encountering as a result of new extreme and seasonal climatic conditions—i.e. global warming—how the Farm Bill helps the West, specifically which programs within the 2002 Farm Bill benefited the West; the impact of Methamphetamine in Alaska and how the Boroughs are developing a statewide project to deal with the effects of meth (similar to the Montana Meth project).

NACo Applauds House for $20 Million Boost in PILT Funds

By Jim Philipps, NACo,

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The National Association of Counties (NACo) today applauded the House of Representatives for passing an amendment to fiscal 2008 Interior-Environment appropriations bill which would increase funds for the Payment In Lieu of Taxes (PILT) program by more than $20 million. Increased funding for the PILT program is a legislative priority for NACo.

The amendment was offered by Rep. Chris Cannon (R-Utah), who is a senior member of the National Parks, Forests, and Public Lands Subcommittee of the Natural Resources Committee. The measure would redirect funds from the Department of the Interior’s Office of Secretary to PILT, effectively increasing PILT appropriations to $253 million for fiscal 2008. The amendment passed by voice vote.

Specifically, the amendment would decrease funds for the Office of the Secretary by $23,148,000 and in turn increase funds for the PILT programs by $20,148,000. The enacted fiscal 2006 appropriation is $233 million. If the amendment becomes law, the fiscal 2007 appropriation for PILT would be $253 million.

Earlier this month, both the House and Senate Appropriations Committees included $233 million for PILT in their reported bill, which is the same level appropriated in fiscal 2006 and 2007. The administration has threatened to veto the Interior-Environment Appropriations bill should it exceed the administration’s recommended spending level. Currently, the $27.6 billion measure exceeds the president’s spending request by $2 billion.

“On behalf of the nation’s counties, I applaud Rep. Cannon and all members who support the PILT program,” said NACo Executive Director Larry E. Naake. “These payments are critical to help counties provide police and firefighting services, search and rescue missions, and infrastructure improvements to transportation and public school systems.”

The PILT program, enacted in 1976, was developed to offset county losses in property taxes due to nontaxable federal lands within their boundaries. PILT payments help counties provide vital services to their communities including education, solid waste disposal, law enforcement, search and rescue, health care, environmental compliance, fire fighting, parks and recreation and other important county services.

NACo RX Discount Program

Submitted by Harold Blattie, MACo Executive Director

At the recent district meetings we discussed the NACo RX discount program. The total savings by Montana consumers during the month of May, with only 16 counties participating, was over $30,000. That is over $360,000 a year! The savings, if all counties were to participate, could exceed a million dollars per year.

If you are interested in participating, you can do it in two ways: 1) by directly entering into an agreement with NACo—if you do this, cards will be printed with your county name on them; 2) use the MACo cards. We have them in stock and the only requirement is that we notify NACo 30 days before distribution so they can contact the pharmacies in your county.

If you have questions or want to enroll, please call me at 444-4360 or send me an e-mail to blattie@maco.cog.mt.us.

The National Association of Counties (NACo), in Partnership with Nationwide Retirement Solutions (NRS), and state associations of counties, provides county employees with a Section 457 Deferred Compensation Program.

Since its inception in 1980, NACo’s 457 Deferred Compensation Program has grown to become the largest supplemental retirement program available to county employees.

Sopris Annual Conference Innovative Ideas for a New West

New Practices for Growing Communities of the Intermountain West

- WHAT: A forum to learn best practices applicable to mid-sized communities of the Intermountain West
- WHERE: Missoula Montana — Wilma Theatre
- WHEN: July 13-15, 2007
- WHO: elected officials, entrepreneurs, ranchers and farmers, planners, concerned citizens, members of the philanthropic community from the Intermountain West

The Sopris Foundation promotes a self-sufficient and innovative West.

Come to talk about the future of a place we are proud of. People came West for the mountains, rural lifestyle, vibrant towns. And, Westerners benefit simply by the chance to live here. A local economy, strong community, and fresh ideas build a meaningful life. But ranches subdivide. Commutes lengthen. Mom and Pops close. Communities fail. So what do we do to protect and enhance all that made this place special? Sopris Foundation believes that good ideas speak. Come listen.

Demand for a foothold in desirable places of the West is boundless. Consequently, we must balance the liveliness of established communities with the impact of such change. The places we hallow have optimistic futures, so long as we center our policy, economy, and culture on established traditions and local community.

Westerners are known for rogue efforts and pluck. We solve problems with grit and imagination. Combating climate change, promoting rural economies and local agriculture, strengthening communities, and equitable access to transit, are pieces of a Western manifesto we can preserve and amplify. We are not isolated towns competing amid scarcity, but a team, drafted to preserve the assets that first brought us.

“Innovative Ideas for a New West” is by invitation to elected officials, planners, ranchers and farmers, grantmakers, and entrepreneurs.

Join us July 13-15 to share ideas on waking up the West.

Register here: <http://www.acteva.com/booking.cfm?bevalID=132978>. There is a group rate for teams of 4 of $175 each person.

Conclusions: County Tid Bits

County Officials

BEAVERHEAD COUNTY Commissioner Mike McGinley recently received a certificate of appreciation and a plaque for his three years of service on the Governor's Commissioner for Community Service.

BROADWATER COUNTY's former Clerk and Recorder, Treasurer, Election Administrator, and Clerk of Court, Judy Gillespie, was honored for her 15 years of service to the county with a thornless cockspur hawthorn tree, which was planted at the Broadwater County Courthouse.

FLATHEAD COUNTY's former County Attorney Patrick M. Springer passed away June 10 in his home in Kalispell from prostate cancer. He was 68 years old.

PARK COUNTY Undersheriff Gary Tanascu recently celebrated his 25th year of work with the Sheriff's Office.

Jails

RAVALLI COUNTY commissioners unanimously approved a contract geared to help inmates that have drug and alcohol addictions.

VALLEY COUNTY officials are reviving plans to build a $5.4 million, 132-bed jail north of Glasgow. The jail's two years of planning were put on hold, until a recent attorney general opinion.

Miscellaneous

ANACONDA-DEER LODGE COUNTY commissioners voted to change the name of the Opportunity Ponds to the Atlantic Richfield Waste Management Area, after some debate over whether it should be attributed to Atlantic Richfield or British Petroleum, and whether it was proper to designate it a waste management or land management area.

CASCADE COUNTY commissioners approved the $560,000

purchase of the second floor of the former Tribune building as part of a reorganization of departments that county officials say will lead to better service and savings.

FLATHEAD COUNTY Sheriff Mike Meehan wants to hire five extra deputies, and he asked the county commissioners for roughly $400,000 to do so.

GALLATIN COUNTY commissioners voted to dissolve the current 911 Administrative Board, responsible for running combined city-county 911 dispatch services and composed of city and county law enforcement and fire protection personnel; as of July 1, the board will be replaced with a seven-member 911 Advisory Board.

HILL COUNTY commissioners granted initial approval to a request to change 26 acres of private land zoned for agricultural use west of Havre to commercial use.

RAVALLI COUNTY received a $100,000 renewable resource grant from the Montana Department of Natural Resources and conservation to digitally map the topography of the northern half of the county.
